Course Description

“Between animal and human medicine there is no dividing line—nor should there be. The object is different but the experience obtained constitutes the basis of all medicine.”

Rudolph Virchow, 19th Century, The Father of Modern Pathology

Comparative medicine once occupied a primary position in medical thought and education. Today, although the spectrum of clinical illness in animals and humans overlaps tremendously, veterinary and human clinical medicine operate in largely separate professional silos. Our fields come together episodically around concerns such as food safety, emerging infections and zoonoses. But the connections between human and veterinary health and clinical practice extend far beyond these issues—a reality well known to veterinarians but less recognized by human physicians. One step to facilitate understanding of the global and species-spanning nature of illness and health is to literally facilitate introductions between clinicians on both sides of this “species-divide.”

The 2nd Annual Zoobiquity Conference is sponsored by the UC Davis School of Veterinary Medicine, the David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA, the College of Veterinary Medicine at Western University of Health Sciences, and the Los Angeles Zoo and Botanical Gardens. The conference is designed to bring together leading clinicians and scientists in both human and veterinary medicine to discuss the same diseases in a wide spectrum of animal species and human beings. The intention of this cross-disciplinary conference is to create conversations and relationships between human and veterinary colleagues confronted with similar clinical challenges. By crossing disciplines in this way, we can significantly expand the perspective of clinicians, scientists and patients about these shared disorders and broader health concerns.

The morning will begin in the auditorium of the Ronald Reagan UCLA Medical Center. Veterinary and human sub-specialists will discuss cases in the areas of Infertility, Oncology, Psychiatry/Behavior, and Obesity.

Following the morning program, conference participants will board buses and travel to the Los Angeles Zoo to participate in “Walk Rounds” led by the zoo’s veterinary staff and wildlife veterinarians from the UC Davis School of Veterinary Medicine. The afternoon session will feature several fascinating cases with important comparative elements. A cocktail reception will conclude the conference and participants will board buses back to UCLA.

Target Audience

This course is targeted to clinicians and scientists in the fields of medicine, veterinary medicine, evolutionary biology, public health, psychology and others.

Conference Goals and Objectives

The purpose of the conference is to facilitate understanding of the global and species-spanning nature of health (One Health). Our intent is that this conference provide a structure and program through which relationships can develop that bridge the “species divide” and from which a broader understanding of disease may emerge.

We hope that the development of these relationships around shared clinical challenges will lead to:

- Broader consideration of the epidemiology of disease
(with implications for shared environmental triggers/exposures)
- Potential for new approaches to the diagnosis and treatment of disease in both animals and humans
- New collaborations and novel hypotheses for investigation
- Greater appreciation for the shared biology and pathophysiology of humans and animals. By extension, this points to the shared vulnerability of many species (including humans) to the same basic health threats—a message which speaks directly to the need for a global/species-spanning approach.

Accreditation

The Office of Continuing Medical Education, David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

The Office of Continuing Medical Education, David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA designates this live activity for a maximum of 7.25 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

This program has applied for RACE Continuing Education Credits through the SCVMA. Approval is pending.

Disclosure Statement

The FDA has issued a concept paper which classifies commercial support of scientific and educational programs as promotional unless it can be affirmed that the program is “truly independent” and free of commercial influence. In addition to independence, the FDA requires that non-promotional, commercially supported education be objective, balanced, and scientifically rigorous. The policy further states that all potential conflicts of interest of the CME staff and faculty be fully disclosed to the program’s participants. In addition, Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education policy now mandates that the provider adequately manage all identified potential conflicts of interest prior to the program. We, at UCLA, fully endorse the letter and spirit of these concepts.
